How do we 'awaken' to the nearer presence of God daily? What steps can we take to rise from our spiritual slumber into fullness of life?

Christians are called to "glorify God and enjoy him forever," as the "chief end" or purpose of our life. Scripture and Christian tradition provide rich resources for shaping the habits our hearts and the exercise of our souls and spirits that help to "form Christ within us," as Paul urges. The classical name for this process is "spiritual formation," and we live in a time of great renewal of interest in the spiritual practices that can help form us in more Christ-like ways.

Bob Morris, an Episcopal Priest and spiritual director will give us both an overview of the shape of Christian spiritual growth and lead us in meditation, reflection, prayer and discussion.

Rev.
Robert
Morris

The Rev. Robert Corin Morris, D.D., an Episcopal priest and spiritual director, is currently Interim Rector of St. Peter's Church, Essex Fells. He founded and was Executive Director of Interweave, an ecumenical and interfaith adult learning center at Calvary Episcopal Church in Summit for 32 years before turning over leadership to a new Director.

He is the author of numerous articles, was a featured contributor to the Upper Room's Weavings magazine for over 20 years, and is the author of three books: Wrestling with Grace: A Spirituality for the Rough Edges of Daily Life, Suffering and the Courage of God, and Provocative Grace: The Challenge in Jesus' Words.

A graduate of Yale University, the General Theological Seminary in New York, and the Shalem Institute for Spiritual Formation, Rev. Morris lives in South Orange with his wife Suzanne and amazing feline friend Gryffindor.
